now in its twenty second edition hook spanier and grove's american foreign policy since world war ii has long set the standard in guiding students through the complexities of american foreign policy the text introduces students to the american style of foreign policy imbued with a distinct sense of national exceptionalism by giving students the historical context they need this book allows them to truly grasp the functions and dysfunctions of the nation's foreign policy agenda with historical insight into modern policy context contains biographical sketches of representative british novelists whose work began to appear roughly around 1960

in the late 1930s a number of american women especially those allied with various peace and isolationist groups protested against the nation's entry into world war ii while their story is fairly well known margaret paton walsh reveals a far less familiar story of women who fervently felt that american intervention was absolutely necessary paton walsh recounts how the united states became involved in the war but does so through the eyes of american women who faced it as a necessary evil covering the period between 1935 and 1941 she examines how these women functioned as political actors even though they were excluded from positions of power through activism in women's organizations informal women's networks and even male dominated lobbying groups in the great debate over whether america should enter the war some women favored aid to the allies not because they hoped for war but because they hoped aid would forestall more direct u.s. involvement but also because they believed war was preferable to a nazi victory paton walsh shows that this activism involved some of the most prominent women of their day elizabeth cutter morrow whose son in law charles lindbergh was an isolationist spokesman supported the revision of the neutrality acts to allow the sale of arms to the allies and expressed her support in a national radio broadcast soon other women joined this debate esther brunauer of the aaup journalist dorothy thompson and organizations like the league of women voters and national women's trade union league broke from the pacifist tradition to advocate american aid for the allied cause focusing on the conflict in europe paton walsh shows how these women grasped the implications of the lend lease program for america's entry into the war but supported it nevertheless by late 1941 the women's division of the fight for freedom committee had been established no longer merely advocating aid to britain to keep american boys out of battle this organization supported direct american involvement in the war as a means of stopping nazi oppression while most historians have focused on women's pacifism paton walsh connects women more directly to world events and shows how those interventionists reformulated maternalist ideas to justify and explain their beliefs our war too is a story of american women trying to reconcile the irreconcilable to preserve both their principles and their peace it expands our understanding of women as political actors and thinkers about foreign policy as it sheds new light on american public opinion over the build up to the war harry truman's administration began searching for an american response to the clash in indochina between french colonialism and vietminh communism in 1945 thirty years and five administrations later gerald ford and his aides tried unsuccessfully to solicit additional aid for south vietnam from a reluctant congress for truman ford and every american leader in between the dilemma in vietnam hung ominously over the presidency in shadow on the white house seven prominent historians examine how the leadership of six presidents and an issue that grew into a difficult and often unpopular war shaped each other focusing on the personalities politics priorities and actions of the presidents as they confronted vietnam the authors consider the expansion of presidential power in foreign policy formulation since world war ii in their analyses they chronicle the history of executive leadership as it related to vietnam assess presidential prerogatives and motives on war and peace issues and clarify the interconnection between the modern presidency and the nation's frustrating tragic and humiliating failure in southeast asia although other histories have been written about the vietnam experience this book is the first systematic and comparative survey on presidential leadership as it relates to the war issue it is organized by presidential administrations giving a detailed examination of each president's decisions and policies based on the most recently opened archival sources the essays provide a framework on which to hang the kaleidoscopic events of the war amazon.com
